Eleven Junior Officer Trainees have been entered on duty with provisional clearance since 1 June 1953. Major problems encountered in use of provisional clearance are as follows:

PROBLEMS

1. Well organized work or study programs have been impossible due to transitional nature of each group and to security limitations.

2. The 90-day stay of induction normally granted to provisionals has proven insufficient to allow completion of BIC after receipt of full clearance. Since General Hershey has refused to make a policy of extending these postponements of induction, several individuals have been enlisted without BIC.

ADVANTAGES

1. Use of provisional clearance saves desirable personnel from Draft.

2. Allows time for assessment, evaluation and affords us an opportunity to get acquainted with each individual.

DISPOSITION

Disposition of above individuals is as follows:

Enlisted without BIC	2
Enlisted with BIC	4
Resigned	1
Currently in BIC	1
In unclassified pool	3
